

Frequently Asked Questions:

Question: It has been stated that the job is renewable nine month-term position. Would you kindly let me know the maximum number of times that this position can be subsequently renewed after a successful candidate is hired.

Answer: This position involves teaching at a relatively new campus in Sioux Falls, South Dakota. Since it is a new institution, they do not have tenure-track positions (that I am aware of). So, all positions are renewable nine month-term positions.

My understanding is that these positions have no set end, and that the renewable part can go on indefinitely. I suppose the only thing that could end the position would be if the enrollment decreases too far. But, the institution has been rapidly growing, not decreasing. I have no reason to expect that this increasing trend will not continue.

Question: How should we have our references submit their letters?

Answer: References should submit their reference letters directly to the Head of the Search Committee:
